

Vampire in Denial

Warning - this book contains some swearing and has a cliffhanger ending! Blood doesn't just make her who she is...it also makes her what she is. Like being a sixteen-year-old vampire isn't hard enough, Tessa's throwback human genes make her an outcast among her relatives. But try as she might, she can't get a handle on the vampire lifestyle and all the...blood. Turning her back on the vamp world, she embraces the human teenage lifestyle--high school, peer pressure and finding a boyfriend. Jared manages to stir something in her blood. He's smart and fun and oh, so cute. But Tessa's dream of having the perfect boyfriend turns into a nightmare when vampires attack the movie theatre and kidnap her date. Once again, Tessa finds herself torn between the human world and the vampire one. Will blood own out? Can she make peace with who she is as well as what? EXCERPT No, Cody had some serious skills, at least according to David. It would take a lot for someone to get the drop on him. Psst. He just didn't have much class. Turning around, Tessa watched Cody land in front of her. His graceful controlled landing made her instantly jealous. There's no sign of anything unusual going on. No, of course not. Why would there be? It's not like they're going to advertise that they've kidnapped humans. She studied the huge stone mansion. The captives are most likely to be downstairs, she said slowly, eyeing the lowest level. Whoa. You're not going into the house. If you're determined to take this further, we go back to our parents and let them go to the council. They will determine the best course of action. Tessa stared at him in disbelief. Everything about the night had taken on a surreal appearance. She was here, where Jared was being held, with someone who could actually help her and he wanted to go for their parents. No knight riding to the rescue here. Then he'd been raised by the old belief that vampires dont go against vampires - without just cause. She didnt think she could come up with enough evidence to prove her case. She snagged his arm, willing him to listen. We have to at least see if they are here. No. No way. He pulled away and turned, prepared to leave. Please.No Tessa. He shook his head, his vampire eyes glowing with terrible heat. Thats enough. This isnt a kids game. This is vampire business.And whos going to believe me? No one. Im not like you. My word doesnt mean anything to the others. If you dont see that Jareds been taken captive yourself, you wont be able to convince them either.He shook his head.Fine. Shed go in alone. Turning away, she headed to the back of the house. Go back home. I dont need you.What the... He raced behind her. Tessa stop. You cant go inside there. Youre not allowed. And theyre allowed to take humans? She snorted. I dont think so.The moon slid out from behind the clouds, highlighting the lower level of the house. Off to the left, a set of stairs cut down to a narrow door. Probably the cellar. Perfect. She picked up her pace, reaching for the knob in seconds. She bolted though the unlocked door before Cody could stop her. Down a narrow hallway, she fled through another door that led to a wide open space. Empty space. Damn it. Could the prisoners have been moved already? How? There hadnt enough time for that.There, are you satisfied now?She spun around at the sound of Codys voice. No.She walked the perimeter of the room. At the far end, the huge room curved down and around. At the far end, her nostrils flared. Her weird knowing sense kicking in. Animal. Fear. Pain. Ancient farm smells permeated the air. Hay. Manure. Blood.Whats the matter? Cody whispered.She looked at him. Cant you smell it?Smell what?Pain.
